

Impending changes to silicon?

Posted by JesseVoss - 2018/07/12 09:35

---

I have heard, or maybe just gottent the impression from forum posts, that there is an impending change to the ESP32 due for the first part of next year. I have about 100 ESP32 that I bought last month and they work just fine for me so far with the Arduino IDE such as it is.

I am wondering if I should go ahead and have 100 of the ESP32 development boards I designed manufactured now with the current ESP32 silicon or wait for the next revision before making the first production batch.

Any more details on the silicon revision and maybe some advice on whether I should wait on production for a few months?

Please help.

I didn't find the right solution from the Internet.
